Commentary

The MSCI AC World Index decreased 0.5% in local currency and 1.7% in USD during the month. The Pacific markets led, increasing 1.6% in local terms but declining 0.5% in USD. In contrast, the Americas declined 1.5% in local terms and 1.6% in USD. The euro, pound and yen all weakened against the USD by 2.3%, 5.6% and 3.3%, respectively.

The top contributors to performance were Bank of New York Mellon, Tesco and ING. Bank of New York Mellon reported good quarterly results that showed double-digit earnings growth—well in excess of revenue growth—as a result of continued cost control discipline. Tesco continued its strong performance from September after reporting encouraging results and establishing 2019/2020 margin targets that provided assurance around long-term profitability. During its investor day held in October, ING's management reasserted that its long-term plans for the business remain intact.

The bottom three contributors were ABB, Amec Foster Wheeler and Medtronic. During the month, ABB reported results showing very weak orders as a result of weakness in its power grid business. This business was being reviewed for potential divestiture which caused uncertainty among its customers. ABB has decided to hold on to this business for now.

Amec Foster Wheeler released its nine-month trading statement. The new CEO had previously maintained that the company would not cut its dividend or undertake a rights offering. However, in this update, he reversed course and said the company would pursue all options to strengthen its financial position. Despite the short-term impact on the stock price, we believe this is the right course of action. Medtronic's share price weakened alongside general health care market declines, pressured by uncertainty tied to the US presidential election.

There were no meaningful purchases or sales of securities within the quarter.

Carefully consider the Fund's investment objective, risks and charges and expenses. This and other important information is contained in the Fund's prospectus and summary prospectus, which can be obtained by calling 800.344.1770. Read carefully before investing.

International investments involve special risks, including currency fluctuation, lower liquidity, different accounting methods and economic and political systems, and higher transaction costs. These risks typically are greater in emerging markets. Securities of medium-sized companies tend to have a shorter history of operations, be more volatile and less liquid and may have underperformed securities of large companies during some periods. Value securities may underperform other asset types during a given period.

MSCI All Country World Index measures the performance of developed and emerging markets. The index(es) are unmanaged; include net reinvested dividends; do not reflect fees or expenses; and are not available for direct investment.
