Commentary

Our portfolio outperformed the MSCI EM Index in November and remains ahead QTD. Amid widespread volatility, emerging markets have fared better than their developed counterparts in Q4. On a total return basis, only a handful of countries are QTD positive performers in the index—most notably Brazil, which has gotten a boost from early, business-friendly signs from newly elected President Bolsonaro's administration.

Our top two relative contributors QTD are domiciled in Brazil—Linx and Cemig. Off-benchmark holding Linx, Brazil's leading retail management software company, has benefited from its launch of Linx Pay, a wholly owned subsidiary that is expected to meaningfully expand revenues through its newly established payments acquirer business and other fintech initiatives. We have trimmed our exposure as shares have approached our target price.

Shares of Cemig, Brazil's largest integrated utility company, have advanced as Minas Gerais' recently elected governor, Romeo Zema, has discussed privatizing the state-owned company. Separately, Zema has also announced cost-cutting measures which should contribute to improving margins. We have reduced our position on the back of shares' strength.

Among our bottom relative contributors QTD is Samsung Biologics. Korea's financial regulator recently ruled the company committed accounting fraud prior to its 2016 IPO—an accusation Samsung Biologics denies. As a result, trading in the stock was halted, the company has been fined, and Korea's Securities and Futures Commission has threatened to delist Samsung Biologics. We maintain our conviction in the company's best-in-class manufacturing capabilities and strong pipeline of marketable biosimilars but are monitoring ongoing developments closely.

iQIYI, often referred to as the Chinese version of Netflix, is another bottom relative contributor QTD. Shares have been pressured as advertising revenues have softened—which management attributes to its recent decision to remove what it considers risky advertisers from the platform. We believe the company is well-positioned to build a robust library of original content while commanding higher subscription prices from its growing customer base.

Volatility is to be expected in emerging markets—it's a natural part of what we believe is a superior growth opportunity over longer periods. As such, we will maintain our disciplined process and closely monitor positions—including on-the-ground visits—to adjust valuations and position size as we believe appropriate.

Carefully consider the Fund's investment objective, risks and charges and expenses. This and other important information is contained in the Fund's prospectus and summary prospectus, which can be obtained by calling 800.344.1770. Read carefully before investing.

International investments involve special risks, including currency fluctuation, lower liquidity, different accounting methods and economic and political systems, and higher transaction costs. These risks typically are greater in emerging markets. Such risks include new and rapidly changing political and economic structures, which may cause instability; underdeveloped securities markets; and higher likelihood of high levels of inflation, deflation or currency devaluations. Securities of small- and medium-sized companies tend to have a shorter history of operations, be more volatile and less liquid and may have underperformed securities of large companies during some periods.

MSCI Emerging Markets Index measures the performance of emerging markets. The index(es) are unmanaged; include net reinvested dividends; do not reflect fees or expenses; and are not available for direct investment.

For the purpose of determining the Fund's holdings, securities of the same issuer are aggregated to determine the weight in the Fund.
