Commentary

After rising for most of the month, global equities came under selling pressure late in the month on concerns about the mounting coronavirus outbreak in China and its potential impacts on international trade, global supply chains and the world's second-largest economy. Weakness was acute among commodity-oriented energy and materials stocks. Interest-rate sensitive and defensive groups—health care, utilities and consumer staples—fared best.

Our portfolio outperformed the MSCI EAFE Index in January due to positive stock selection among our technology and financials holdings. Wirecard and Lonza Group were two of our top overall contributors. The announcement that former Deutsche Boerse chief financial officer Thomas Eichelmann was named Wirecard's new chairman was well received by investors. The appointment of Mr. Eichelmann—a strong proponent of an independent review into the company's accounting—is an important sign that the global payments company is taking governance seriously amid ongoing allegations of questionable accounting. Our investment case remains focused on sustainable growth in electronic payments processing. Shares are attractively valued in our view, selling at a PEG ratio of 0.4X our estimates of 2021 earnings per share and at a P/E multiple of 15X our estimates of 2021 earnings per share.

Switzerland-based Lonza Group is a global supplier of biotechnology and specialty ingredients for the life sciences, pharmaceuticals and food-processing industries. Top-line growth in the company's pharma/biotech division is being driven by strong demand for outsourced drug manufacturing. We continue to like the company's exposure to the high-growth biologic and gene therapy CDMO (contract development and manufacturing organization) sector.

Our weakest performers included a few of our more Asia-exposed holdings, such as AIA, a pan-Asian insurance company, and Wynn Macau, a casino owner and operator. We fully appreciate the negative impacts from the coronavirus outbreak but believe these will be temporary. Both companies remain well positioned in their markets to benefit from the demographic tailwinds of rising incomes and wealth accumulation in emerging Asia. Brazilian oil and gas company Petrobras was another large detractor, as shares were down along with the broader energy complex.

Securities of small- and medium-sized companies tend to have a shorter history of operations, be more volatile and less liquid and may have underperformed securities of large companies during some periods. Growth securities may underperform other asset types during a given period.
