Commentary

Global equities extended their YTD gains in Q2, supported by strong earnings results and economic releases. COVID-19 trends—vaccination rates, new variants and related lockdowns—remained in focus, as were inflation and interest rates amid continued accommodative monetary policies. However, in contrast to Q1's cyclical-led rally, all sectors aside from utilities performed well. Technology, health care and energy stocks led, each returning 9%-10%. Regionally, developed markets edged emerging markets, driven by strength in the US and Europe in contrast to muted gains in China.

The portfolio outperformed the MSCI AC World Index in Q2, aided by positive stock selection in the industrials and health care sectors. Our top individual contributors were Vertiv Holdings and JEOL. Vertiv is a leading provider of power, thermal and infrastructure management equipment and services for the structurally growing global data center market. In addition to margin improvement potential, we believe the company is well-positioned to benefit from the secular growth in data traffic and is attractively valued relative to its growth. Better-than-expected revenue growth in its latest quarter was driven by strength in the growing cloud and colocation data center markets, with Asia Pacific especially strong due to a recovery from COVID-related pressures.

JEOL is a world leader in transmission electron microscopy. While this tool has historically been used in academia, its application is spreading to other industries such as life sciences and semiconductor production, where the need for nanoscale precision is increasing and the margins are meaningfully higher. JEOL's newly released electron beam metal AM machine is expected to deliver greater production scalability at a lower marginal cost. We remain positive on the company but sold our position on valuation grounds.

Our biggest detractors were China Youzan and TeamSpirit. Youzan, often called China's Shopify, offers software tools for merchants to build their own e-commerce stores. Gross merchandise volume growth came in below expectations and decelerated from the previous quarter, mainly due to a reduced contribution from Kuaishou, a short video and live streaming social platform in China that is building out its own e-commerce ecosystem. Based on expectations of continued Kuaishou-related headwinds, we exited our position.

TeamSpirit, a cloud-based ERP software provider to Japanese enterprises, has been a smaller position in the portfolio. The company closed fewer-than-expected deals—a direct consequence of Japan's COVID-19 state of emergency instituted in January that prevented normalized pipeline conversion—and revised downwards its full-year guidance due to deal slippage and incremental costs related to the rollout of its new product TeamSpirit EX. EX has been a critical part of our investment thesis, as the product's potential higher prices and Japan's sizable large-enterprise market represent a meaningful revenue opportunity for TeamSpirit. Though the stock sells at a 50% discount to peers, we consider the near-term COVID-related impacts and the delay in the longer term EX opportunity to be detrimental to our thesis and sold our position in favor of better opportunities.

Carefully consider the Fund's investment objective, risks and charges and expenses. This and other important information is contained in the Fund's prospectus and summary prospectus, which can be obtained by calling 800.344.1770. Read carefully before investing.

Current and future portfolio holdings are subject to risk. International investments involve special risks, including currency fluctuation, lower liquidity, different accounting methods and economic and political systems, and higher transaction costs. These risks typically are greater in emerging markets. Securities of small- and medium-sized companies tend to have a shorter history of operations, be more volatile and less liquid and may have underperformed securities of large companies during some periods. Growth securities may underperform other asset types during a given period.

MSCI All Country World Index measures the performance of developed and emerging markets. The index(es) are unmanaged; include net reinvested dividends; do not reflect fees or expenses; and are not available for direct investment.
